

COVID-19 Eviction Protections for Tenants

Evictions for Nonpayment of Rent:

If you lost income or have increased expenses from COVID-19, your landlord cannot evict you, as long as you take steps to protect yourself:

- Sign a Declaration of COVID-19-Related Financial Distress and give it to your landlord for every month you cannot pay full rent.
- Keep a copy or take a photo of each signed declaration for your records.
- Pay 25% of rent owed from September 1, 2020 – June 30, 2021 by June 30, 2021.

Example: If your rent is $1,000 per month, then the total rent owed from September 1, 2020 – June 30, 2021 (ten months) will be $10,000. You must pay $2,500 on or before June 30, 2021 in order to avoid eviction.

Your landlord cannot charge late fees on rent, as long as you submit a declaration.

You are still responsible for paying back the rent.

- Your landlord can bring a case against you as early as July 1, 2021 to recover rental debt you owe, even though your landlord cannot evict you if you paid the 25%.

Emergency Rental Assistance: Coming soon. This program may be able to help you get caught up on rent and make future rent payments.

- Legal Aid will provide information on how to apply in the coming weeks.

Evictions Unrelated to Nonpayment of Rent:

If you live in Sonoma County, you cannot be evicted unless there is an imminent threat to health or safety OR your landlord is taking the property off the rental market.

These protections apply to all tenants, including subtenants and mobile home tenants, regardless of immigration status.

It is illegal for your landlord to harass you, threaten you, cut off your utilities, or lock you out of your home.
